let Walker out from his ridiculous dilemma.

An Idea of "Fairness." Considering the facts that the people of Wisconsin are a reading people—that they take a great many newspapers -- and that they thoroughly understand the real position of things in Kansus, it is astonishing to see with what coolness the News and other Hunkor sheets in the interest of the Border Ruffian party of that territory con tinue to make assertions in relation to political matters there, in direct variance with the most notorious facts. Such assertions must be made from the mere habit and love of falsehood, for surely they can deceive nobody.

Thus, the News, for the hundredth time, denounces the free state men in Kansas for (we use its own language) "refusing to vote on the question, slavery or no slavery? when it came fairly before them in the election of delegates to the Constitutional Convention."

At this late day, when the people know per feetly that by the enactments of the bogus Legitlature, the vast majority of the free state men were absolutely prohibited from voting, by being left off from the Registry, it is the very climax of impudence to find fault with them for not

But the recklessness of the Hunker press, is, if possible, more clearly manifest in the following extract from Saturday's News:

extract from Saturday's News:

Says the Sentinel, "the enactments of the border utilina Legislature, legalizing slavery in that Territory, are declared valid by the administration." In this sentence are two mis-statements; in making which the Sentinel presumed largely upon the patient ignorance of its readers. It is not true that the laws of the border ruffan legislature legalize slavery in Kansan; and it manifestly follows that the administration does not sustain such legislation. tain such legislation.

It is true that "the concements of the border ruffian Legislature legalize Slavery in Kansus"-notoriously true. They not only recognize and legalize it, but the most outrageous code of laws ever enacted provides the severest ponalties against those who dare to speak or write against Slavery, or to circulate newspapers which oppose it. Not legalize Slavery? Why it was this very code of laws legalizing Slavery which was, in the U. S. Senate, denounced by Gen'l Cass and other democrate in most unmeasured terms.

And as to the other branch of the proposition that the "administration declares those enactments valid," it is sufficient to recall the instructions given to Robert J. Walker, and his Inaugura address, in which he stated expressly that the laws known as the "bogus" laws were recognived by the Government. And if any other evidence were wanting of the committal of the Democratic party to the support of those infanous laws, it would be found in the steady bark of the whole pack—Tray, Blanche, News and of the whole pack—Tray, Blanche, News and of the whole pack—Tray, Blanche, News and of the free State men for their refusal to "obey the laws." The Late Insurrectionary Fovement in Italy.

The Independence Belge furnishes some inter esting details in reference to the late movements in Italy, from which we condense the following: The Government is represented as not being at all sarprised at the existence of revolutionary feeling, but alarmed at the vast resources discovered to be at the hands of the conspirators. All the assassins who have arrived at Genor during the past month have been provided with regular passports. Upon their persons or in their dwellings the police have found sums of money of greater or less amount, according to the importance of the part each was expected to play in the great work of arousing Italy. The beurgents arrested at Legbora were also provided with money. The investigations arove that in this city, as at Genon, plenty of money was distributed among the people the day the plot

When the Carbineers came to arrest her, she threw herself upon a portrait of Mazzini and kissed it with intense and pious fervor. It was rumoted that she had declared that she was married to the old chief of young Italy. She is engaged, on the contrary, to a poor young man hose name is not even known. When she visited the capital of the Sardinian kinedom a month or two ago, a screnade was get up to compliment her by a society of so-called 'tradesmen,' and it is said that, in returning thanks to these amateur musicians for their perseverance in blowing under her window on a very rainy night, she told them they would do much better. in her opinion, if they would go home and propare themselves to fight for their liberty, &c .--By means of subscriptions she obtained in the single city of Genea, a sufficient sum for the purchase of ten thousand muskets. She refused to leave Genea, as required by the Government.

Mazzini is thought to have gone to England, ment by Austria, which assumes the guardianship of Italy, not to suffer him to remain in the

The New Chapter in the Case of Mrs.

We spare our readers the details of the discovery of the attempt on the part of Mrs. Cunsingham to provide a false heir to the Burdell estate. The main facts are as follows:

One Dr. Uhl, who had been ber physician, was informed by her that she intended to bring forword a suppositious child for the purpose, and He was told by that officer to affect a readiness to engage in the plot, and a counter-plot was bind. An infant was obtained from the Almshouse, marked, and taken to a house in Elm street, whither Mrs. Countingham went in disguise at about v P. M., all the while watched by the Police, and taking the child in a basket, returned to No. 31 Bond Street. There, during the night, Dr. Uhl being present, but a Dr. Cutler acting in the case, the bold, bad woman pretended to first the child into the world, and presented it as the heir of Do. Burdell! Policemen were at hand immediately, the child was taken and returned to its real mother at the Almshouse, and the guilty parties placed under arrest.

THE ST. LOUIS AND MISSOURI ELECTION -A REBURE TO THE DOUGHPACES.-The St. Louis Democrat, which supported Rollins as the free labor candidate for Governor, remarks as follows oncerning the result in that county:

"About thirty-five hundred votes were polled, ine tenths of which are ultra free soit. nine tenths of which are ultra free soil. Upon a direct emancipation issue, unembarrased by any party antecedents, we may, therefore, in the litture, calculate upon a clear working majority of four themsand votes. This is very significant and very cheering. At the last April election, Mayor Wimer failed of obtaining a clear majority over both his competitors by two or three hundred; now we have carried the city by fourteen hundred and thirty four. This shows the repidity of the growth of the free acit sentiment within the last four months; and the trimph, so har as it involves a mere local victory, is glory enough for one day.

A CHICAGO CHARACTERISTIC. Somebody bas sent us a small printed map of what is called "Chicago's System of Wisconsin Ruilroads"—a ring and insulting document, intended to give transgers the idea that all the roads of this State in leaf and of this State. are feeders to that fetid and sickly place. It is no positively ridiculous that trade and commerce are feeders to that fold and sickly place. It is a so positively ridiculous that trade and commerce will flow southwardly from our country and towns to Chicago, only to make a sharp turn protawardly again in finding their way essaward, when so many nearer and botter lake ports are stream along Wisconsin shores, that none but the simpletons will be taken in by it; but it is neverated as in Chicago characteristic, a stitcle aggravated in impudence this time.

liquor, he was foolish enough to show this to the keeper of a low doggery, named Bays, who, after some conversation, proposed a walk. They proceeded to the bank of the river, and went up it till they came to a spring, where three other men stood. After the rest had drank, Stevens stooped lown for the same purpose, when the gang made their onelaught. After killing bim, as they supposed, they threw the body into the river. Ste vers was yet alive and had strength enough to reach the river bank, and partly crawled from the water, but died before the murder was known .--Bays then proceeded through several of the principal streets, but until he reached his own dwelling said nothing of the affair. Here he called out a man, and told an incoherent story or his being robbed and Stevens shot. The slarm was given, and on reaching the spot, the body was found with nine stabs upon it, four of which were each fatal. Bays and two of his accomplices were soon arrested, but denied their guilt. plices were soon arrested, but denied their guilt. This morning, however, the police arrested a mean nemed Knight. At this time, (1 P. M.) the excitement is intense. The examination of one of the man is now proceeding, and a large crowd fills Main St. hear the Mayor's office and theatre determined to take the prisoners the police and hang them.

Efrom 2 o'cloux, P. N.

Up to this time, the crowd has steadily increased in numbers. Several law-abiding men attempted to stem the tide of public opinion, but were hooted down. Among others, Judge Lecompte tried to be heard, but he was constantly interrupted by cries of "There's no law in Kapiers," "You will let them go!" "If they prove is a men in substant of the ratifies of the Colored pusson availed blinnel of the facilities of the Underground Rational, and was missing. Immense, zeven Deputy United States Mershals eas!" "You will let them go!" "If they prove all right on the goose, you will let them!" and much more of the same kind. During the Judge's speech, two of the prisoners, who were in the Leavenworth Hotel, were conveyed out of a back door, tinseen by the crowd, and taken to a back door, tussed by the crowd, and taken to the Fort for safe keeping. Ascertaining this, the cry was raised, "To the Calabonas!" and thither all rushed. This is a small stone building used as a city prison. The excited mob demanded the keys, but the Marshal refused them admittance. A large beam was found, and, swung by as many as could a hold, soon broke in the heavy doors. Ropes were in residiness, and smid rias many as could a hold, soon broke in the heavy doors. Ropes were in readiness, and amid trimphant yells, the two prisoners and amid trimphant yells, the two prisoners were brought forth, and, partly dangged, partly carried, swiftly conveyed to the bank of the creek which runs through the city. A tree just back of the sceam mill was the one selected. "One at a time!" was shouted, and accordingly one of the ropes was thrown over a limb. The prisoner looked around appe lingly, but could are no sympathy in the abgry crowd which surrounded him. No time was given him to commend his soul to that Maker before whom it was so soon to appear.—With a yell of exultation he was swung up, but as his hands had not been fastened, he raised his arms and prevented stangulation. The rope was arms and prevented stangulation. The rope was lowered, and men seized his arms, while others pulled upon his body until his neck was broken; virtually murdering him, as he hung auspended. The body was then raised, but exhibited no signs of animation after. The unit of John Quali's life had been taken from the sum of human existence. Some one demanded that five minutes be given bim in which to make a confession. It was agreed to, and he spoke in substance as follows:

"I am about to die for a crime I never committed,—for killing a man I never laid hands. I left the ground before the murder was committed. I am a counterfeiter, but no murderen."

Some one raised the cry "Take the rope of him!" Others repeated it, and the mob, not one-tenth of whom had heard a word the prisoner uttered by a singular revelution of feditions.

one-tenth of whom had heard a word the prison-er attered, by a singular revolution of feelings, echoed the cry, and taking off the cord, hustled the prisoner back to jail. The respite was of short duration, however. He was soon dragged out again, and but for the appearance upon the ground of his wile, would have soon followed Qualls. Mrs. Bays threw her arms around his Qualis. Mrs. Hays threw her arms around neck and pleaded for her husband's life, as only neck and plead in such circumstances. The awife could plead in such circumstances. The dormant man was roused in the natures of many spectators, and despite the remonstrances and threats of a few, Bays was re-conducted to the jail. Then ensued a contest between the law-abiding others and the others. Marshall Derection of the property of the contest of the conte abiding citizens and the others. Marshall Dermey called upon a posse to sesist him in preserving order. Many responded, and for a long time they held the mob in check. Brute torse prevailed over reason, and about 7 o'clock the doors were again forced, the rope adjusted, hands prevailed over reason, and about 7 o'holes the doors were again forced, the rope adjusted, bands confined, and the mob again rushed to the fatal tree. Quali's body had been removed, and in less time than before, even, all that remained of Wm. Bays was a lifeless form slowly swinging back and forth. The rope was fastened and the crowd dispersed ellont'y.

Of the justice of this act of the people, I have neither time nor inclination to speak. Before judging, let people tremember that honest men are placed in a pesuliar position here. Both life and property cannot be otherwise than insecure in a city where carrying arms is a nuiversal practice, and despurate characters are common.—The koife of the assassin makes no noise, and the swift waters of the Missouri carry away all evidence of crime. Let us hope the example made this day will prove a means of exemption from such occurrences in the future.

I came from Lawrence yesterday. The day before, nonther detuchment of troops arrived, and encamped with the others, making the whole number nearly 600. The camp is about a mille from town. Visiting it from motives of curiosity, I happened near the Governor's tent, just as an acquaintance of his came up and introduced another of the faithful, who had not as yet the honor of shahing hands with his excellency.—The first thing done after the introduction was to produce a bottle—4 universal rule with all Southerners I have seen in this Territory. Dame Rumor savs that Walker has been almost constantly under the influence of liquor since his military operations, commenced. Meantime the people of Lawrence are just as "rebellious" as over. The round of "rebellious" baws mingles with the strokes of "rebellious" baws mingles of the neither of the neither of the means of the neither of the means of the neit ordinance of the neinously "robellious" Council, sprinkles the dusty streets. None would imagine who witnessed the busy condition of the streets of Lawrence, that an army with hostile intent was encamped near them. Business goes on just as usual; the Common Council have put in force all needed ordinances, (providing for sewerings, whether the traces. sge, watering the streets, &c.) while the troops lie basking in the bot rays of a midsummer's sur. What the Governor's object really was in bringing troops to Lawrence, can be only guessed at. The people of that city have done no more than the receipt of Teeth Consideration. The people of that city have done no more than the people of Topeka, Quindaro, and half a dozen other towns, in forming regulations for their protection. Even the tool of a Democratic Administration, will hardly dark to interfere with the election on Monday next; and many think the real object of Hia Littleness is to make an attempt at collecting taxes. If so, the military band will find that favorite old negro melody, "Jordan's a hard road to travel," very appropriate to the occasion.

The Springfield Register is boasting over the quiet and orderly manner in which a human being can be sent back to hopeless bondage from that city. We presume the fugitive slave law could be enforced in Pandemonium, without creating any further disturbance than the horid
